The Director
 Tasmania Law Reform Institute

Dear Professor Jeremy Prichard,

Tasmania Police is currently seeking feedback on the draft Community Protection (Offender Reporting) Amendment Bill. The consultation period ends on 16 February 2024.

The Bill is intended to amend the Community Protection (offender Reporting) Act 2005 (the Act).

The Act was established to require convicted sex offenders to keep police informed of their whereabouts and provide personal details for a period of time to deter re-offending and help police investigate sexual crimes.

The aim of the amendments are to ensure that appropriate and adequate information is recorded by police and able to be disclosed for the purpose of monitoring offenders and protecting children and the community from the harms of sexual offending.

The Tasmania Law Reform Institute has been identified as an important stakeholder in the area of legislative reform. As such, I seek your assistance and encourage you to review and provide feedback on the Bill.

The Bill together with further information and instructions on how to make a submission are available on the Tasmania Police Website.

Thank you for your consideration and assistance with this important piece of work, which will further strengthen the safety and wellbeing of children across Tasmania.

Yours sincerely,

Robert Blackwood APM
